
11PlusDIY : EN-FB-002
English Worksheet
11PlusDIY.co.uk
helping your child to achieve exce11ence

11PlusDIY: EA-FB-002

English Worksheet

All rights reserved. No part of this publication may be reproduced or transmitted in any form or by any means, electronic or mechanical including photocopying, recording or any information storage or retrieval system without written permission from Quattro Ethereal Ltd.

The right of 11PlusDIY-Quattro Ethereal Ltd to be identified as author of this work has been asserted by them in accordance with the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1998.

Any person who commits any unauthorised act in relation to this publication may be liable to criminal prosecution and civil damages.

PO Box 15794
Bromsgrove
B60 9GS
Email: sales@11PlusDIY.co.uk
Telephone: 0121-2884790
Web: http://www.11PlusDIY.co.uk

	The following passages are from "The Story of Doctor Dolittle" by Hugh Lofting. Read each passage carefully. In each passage there is an incomplete word. Determine the incomplete word and write it correctly.	Answer
1	ONCE upon a time, many years ago when our g*andf*the*s were little children—there was a doctor; and his name was Dolittle—John Dolittle, M.D. "M.D." means that he was a proper doctor and knew a whole lot.
2	He lived in a little town called, Puddleby-on-the-Marsh. All the folks, young and old, knew him well by sight. And whenever he walked down the street in his high hat e*er*o*e would say, "There goes the Doctor!—He's a clever man." And the dogs and the children would all run up and follow behind him; and even the crows that lived in the church-tower would caw and nod their heads.
3	The house he lived in, on the edge of the town, was quite small; but his garden was very large and had a wide lawn and stone seats and weeping-willows h*n*i*g over. His sister, Sarah Dolittle, was housekeeper for him; but the Doctor looked after the garden himself.
4	He was very fond of a*i*a*s and kept many kinds of pets. Besides the gold-fish in the pond at the bottom of his garden, he had rabbits in the pantry, white mice in his piano, a squirrel in the linen closet and a hedgehog in the cellar. He had a cow with a calf too, and an old lame horse-twenty-five years of age—and chickens, and pigeons, and two lambs, and many other animals. But his favourite pets were Dab-Dab the duck, Jip the dog, Gub-Gub the baby pig, Polynesia the parrot, and the owl Too-Too.
5	His sister used to grumble about all these animals and said they made the house untidy. And one day when an old lady with rheumatism came to see the Doctor, she sat on the hedgehog who was s*ee*i*g on the sofa and never came to see him anymore, but drove every Saturday all the way to Oxenthorpe, another town ten miles off, to see a different doctor.

Copyright 11PlusDIY© 2010. No part of this may be copied or reproduced in any format or media without explicit written permission from 11PlusDIY. For more information on authenticity of this document visit http://www.11PlusDIY.co.uk. Any person who commits any unauthorised act in relation to this publication may be liable to criminal prosecution and civil claims for damages.

6	Sixpence a year wasn't enough to live on—even in those days, long ago; and if the Doctor hadn't had some money saved up in his money-box, no one knows what would have h*pp*n*d.
7	Then he sold his piano, and let the mice live in a bureau-drawer. But the money he got for that too began to go, so he sold the brown suit he wore on Sundays and went on b*co*i*g poorer and poorer.
8	And now, when he walked down the street in his high hat, people would say to one a*o*h*r, "There goes John Dolittle, M.D.! There was a time when he was the best known doctor in the West Country—Look at him now—He hasn't any money and his stockings are full of holes!"
9	So that was the way the Doctor came to know that animals had a l*ng*a*e of their own and could talk to one another. And all that afternoon, while it was raining, Polynesia sat on the kitchen table giving him bird words to put down in the book.
10	After a while, with the parrot's help, the Doctor got to learn the language of the animals so well that he could talk to them h*m*e*f and understand everything they said. Then he gave up being a people's doctor altogether.
11	And soon it became a common sight to see farm-animals w*a*i*g glasses in the country round Puddleby; and a blind horse was a thing unknown.

Copyright 11PlusDIY© 2010. No part of this may be copied or reproduced in any format or media without explicit written permission from 11PlusDIY. For more information on authenticity of this document visit http://www.11PlusDIY.co.uk. Any person who commits any unauthorised act in relation to this publication may be liable to criminal prosecution and civil claims for damages.

12	Now all these animals went back and told their brothers and friends that there was a doctor in the little house with the big garden who really WAS a doctor. And w*en*v*r any creatures got sick—not only horses and cows and dogs—but all the little things of the fields, like harvest-mice and water-voles, badgers and bats, they came at once to his house on the edge of the town, so that his big garden was nearly always crowded with animals trying to get in to see him.
13	One a*te*no*n when the Doctor was busy writing in a book, Polynesia sat in the window—as she nearly always did—looking out at the leaves blowing about in the garden. Presently she laughed aloud.
14	AND soon now the Doctor began to make money again; and his sister, Sarah, bought a new dress and was happy. Some of the animals who came to see him were so sick that they had to stay at the Doctor's house for a week. And when they were g*t*i*g better they used to sit in chairs on the lawn.
15	But soon the animals themselves began to get worried. And one e*e*i*g when the Doctor was asleep in his chair before the kitchen-fire they began talking it over among themselves in whispers. And the owl, Too-Too, who was good at arithmetic, figured it out that there was only money enough left to last another week—if they each had one meal a day and no more.
16	Then the parrot said, "I think we all ought to do the housework o*rs*lv*s. At least we can do that much. After all, it is for our sakes that the old man finds himself so lonely and so poor."
17	So it was agreed that the monkey, Chee-Chee, was to do the cooking and mending; the dog was to sweep the floors; the duck was to dust and make the beds; the owl, Too-Too, was to keep the accounts, and the pig was to do the gardening. They made Polynesia, the parrot, housekeeper and laundress, b*c*u*e she was the oldest.

Copyright 11PlusDIY© 2010. No part of this may be copied or reproduced in any format or media without explicit written permission from 11PlusDIY. For more information on authenticity of this document visit http://www.11PlusDIY.co.uk. Any person who commits any unauthorised act in relation to this publication may be liable to criminal prosecution and civil claims for damages.

18	Then the animals made a v*ge*ab*e and flower stall outside the garden-gate and sold radishes and roses to the people that passed by along the road.
19	But the snow came e*r*i*r than usual that year; and although the old lame horse hauled in plenty of wood from the forest outside the town, so they could have a big fire in the kitchen, most of the vegetables in the garden were gone, and the rest were covered with snow; and many of the animals were really hungry.
20	THAT Winter was a very cold one. And one night in December, when they were all sitting round the warm fire in the kitchen, and the Doctor was r*a*i*g aloud to them out of books he had written himself in animal-language, the owl, Too-Too, suddenly said, "Sh! What's that noise outside?"
21	So early the next m*r*i*g the Doctor went down to the seashore. And when he came back he told the animals it was all right—the sailor was going to lend them the boat.
22	Then they began to w*nr where they were going to get the money from to buy all the things they needed.
23	As soon as they were on the ship, Gub-Gub, the pig, asked where the beds were, for it was four o'clock in the a*te*no*n and he wanted his nap. So Polynesia took him downstairs into the inside of the ship and showed him the beds, set all on top of one another like book-shelves against a wall.

Copyright 11PlusDIY© 2010. No part of this may be copied or reproduced in any format or media without explicit written permission from 11PlusDIY. For more information on authenticity of this document visit http://www.11PlusDIY.co.uk. Any person who commits any unauthorised act in relation to this publication may be liable to criminal prosecution and civil claims for damages.

24	NOW for six whole weeks they went s*i*i*g on and on, over the rolling sea, following the swallow who flew before the ship to show them the way. At night she carried a tiny lantern, so they should not miss her in the dark; and the people on the other ships that passed said that the light must be a shooting star.
25	And another time a whole school of porpoises came dancing through the waves; and they too asked Polynesia if this was the ship of the famous doctor. And when they heard that it was, they asked the parrot if the Doctor wanted a*yt*i*g for his journey.
26	And about half an hour later, sure enough, they thought they could see something in front that might be land. But it began to get darker and darker and they couldn't be sure. Then a great storm came up, with thunder and l*gh*ni*g. The wind howled; the rain came down in torrents; and the waves got so high they splashed right over the boat.
27	When the sun came out next morning they went down to the sandy beach to dry t*ems*lv*s.
28	So they g*th*r*d up their baggage and went off, following the man through the jungle.
29	This was where the King lived with his Queen, Ermintrude, and their son, Prince Bumpo. The Prince was away f*s*i*g for salmon in the river. But the King and Queen were sitting under an umbrella before the palace door. And Queen Ermintrude was asleep.

Copyright 11PlusDIY© 2010. No part of this may be copied or reproduced in any format or media without explicit written permission from 11PlusDIY. For more information on authenticity of this document visit http://www.11PlusDIY.co.uk. Any person who commits any unauthorised act in relation to this publication may be liable to criminal prosecution and civil claims for damages.

30	So that night, when the moon was shining t*r*u*h the palm-trees and all the King's men were asleep, the parrot slipped out through the bars of the prison and flew across to the palace. The pantry window had been broken by a tennis ball the week before; and Polynesia popped in through the hole in the glass.
31	But the Queen, who was just letting h*r*e*f in at the backdoor with a latch-key, saw the parrot getting out through the broken glass. And when the King came back to bed she told him what she had seen.
32	All this time the Doctor and his animals were r*n*i*g through the forest towards the Land of the Monkeys as fast as they could go.
33	By this time the Doctor had picked h*m*e*f up, and on they went again, running and running. And Chee-Chee shouted,
34	JOHN DOLITTLE now became dreadfully, awfully busy. He found hundreds and t*ou*an*s of monkeys sick—gorillas, orangoutangs, chimpanzees, dog-faced baboons, marmosettes, gray monkeys, red ones—all kinds. And many had died.
35	At last, after blundering about like this for many days, getting their clothes torn and their faces covered with mud, they walked right into the King's back-garden by mistake. The King's men came r*n*i*g up at once and caught them.

Copyright 11PlusDIY© 2010. No part of this may be copied or reproduced in any format or media without explicit written permission from 11PlusDIY. For more information on authenticity of this document visit http://www.11PlusDIY.co.uk. Any person who commits any unauthorised act in relation to this publication may be liable to criminal prosecution and civil claims for damages.

36	Now one sunshiny day the Doctor and Dab-Dab were w*l*i*g up and down on the ship for exercise; a nice fresh wind was blowing the boat along, and everybody was happy. Presently Dab-Dab saw the sail of another ship a long way behind them on the edge of the sea. It was a red sail.
37	And although swallows are not very strong when only one or two are by themselves, it is d*ff*re*t when there are a great lot of them together. And there, tied to the Doctor's ship, were a thousand strings; and two thousand swallows were pulling on each string—all terribly swift fliers.
38	And all the animals on the ship began to laugh and dance about in the rushing air, for when they looked back at the pirates' ship, they could see that it was growing s*a*l*r now, instead of bigger. The red sails were being left far, far behind.
39	But of course the men did not u*der*ta*d him. Soon the front end of the ship began to go down and down, faster and faster—till the boat looked almost as though it were standing on its head; and the pirates had to cling to the rails and the masts and the ropes and anything to keep from sliding off.
40	While he was s*an*i*g there, wondering how the monkeys were getting on—and what his garden would look like when he got back to Puddleby, Dab-Dab came tumbling up the stairs, all smiles and full of news.
41	So the Doctor went downstairs and he saw that it was indeed a beautiful ship. He found the animals gathered round a little door, all talking at once, trying to guess what was inside. The Doctor turned the handle but it wouldn't open. Then they all started to hunt for the key. They looked under the mat; they looked under all the carpets; they looked in all the cupboards and drawers and lockers—in the big chests in the ship's dining-room; they looked e*ery*he*e.

Copyright 11PlusDIY© 2010. No part of this may be copied or reproduced in any format or media without explicit written permission from 11PlusDIY. For more information on authenticity of this document visit http://www.11PlusDIY.co.uk. Any person who commits any unauthorised act in relation to this publication may be liable to criminal prosecution and civil claims for damages.

42	So they all came back to the door, and Jip peered through the key-hole. But s*me*hi*g had been stood against the wall on the inside and he could see nothing.
43	The room was quite small; no window; the ceiling, low. For furniture there was only one little stool. All round the room big barrels stood against the walls, fastened at the bottom so they wouldn't tumble with the rolling of the ship; and above the barrels, pewter jugs of all sizes hung from w*on pegs. There was a strong, winey smell. And in the middle of the floor sat a little boy, about eight years old, crying bitterly.
44	All the animals had been s*an*i*g around listening with great curiosity. And when they had gone into the ship's dining-room and were having tea, Dab-Dab came up behind the Doctor's chair and whispered.
45	So the Doctor ran downstairs with the news and told the nephew, who clapped his hands with happiness. And the pushmi-pullyu took the little boy on his back and gave him a ride round the dining-room table; while all the other animals f*ll*w*d behind, beating the dish-covers with spoons, pretending it was a parade.
46	UP they got, early next m*r*i*g, out of the silken beds; and they saw that the sun was shining brightly and that the wind was blowing from the South.
47	And all the animals got tremendously e*c*t*d; and they gave up looking at Jip and turned to watch the sea in front, to spy out any land or islands where the starving man might be.

Copyright 11PlusDIY© 2010. No part of this may be copied or reproduced in any format or media without explicit written permission from 11PlusDIY. For more information on authenticity of this document visit http://www.11PlusDIY.co.uk. Any person who commits any unauthorised act in relation to this publication may be liable to criminal prosecution and civil claims for damages.

48	They all stood still and listened, straining their ears for any sound. But the only noise they heard was the gentle lapping of the little waves a*a*n*t the sides of their ship.
49	But just at that m*mt the match went out again. And the man thought it was Ben Ali coming back, and he began to punch the Doctor in the dark.
50	And the Mayor took from his pocket a little tissue-paper packet, and o*e*i*g it, he handed to the Doctor a perfectly beautiful watch with real diamonds in the back.

Copyright 11PlusDIY© 2010. No part of this may be copied or reproduced in any format or media without explicit written permission from 11PlusDIY. For more information on authenticity of this document visit http://www.11PlusDIY.co.uk. Any person who commits any unauthorised act in relation to this publication may be liable to criminal prosecution and civil claims for damages.

Answers

1	grandfathers	26	lightning
2	everyone	27	themselves
3	hanging	28	gathered
4	animals	29	fishing
5	sleeping	30	through
6	happened	31	herself
7	becoming	32	running
8	another	33	himself
9	language	34	thousands
10	himself	35	running
11	wearing	36	walking
12	whenever	37	different
13	afternoon	38	smaller
14	getting	39	understand
15	evening	40	standing
16	ourselves	41	everywhere
17	because	42	something
18	vegetable	43	wooden
19	earlier	44	standing
20	reading	45	followed
21	morning	46	morning
22	wonder	47	excited
23	afternoon	48	against
24	sailing	49	moment
25	anything	50	opening

Copyright 11PlusDIY© 2010. No part of this may be copied or reproduced in any format or media without explicit written permission from 11PlusDIY. For more information on authenticity of this document visit http://www.11PlusDIY.co.uk. Any person who commits any unauthorised act in relation to this publication may be liable to criminal prosecution and civil claims for damages.